

LEXINGTON—PRINTED BY JOHN BRADFORD.

PRINTER TO THE COMMONWEALTH.

THE CRISIS.—No. 1.

THE present period of American affairs, may very justly be considered, as the most dangerous and important that we have seen, since the revolution. We fondly entertained the hope, that an emancipation from the tyranny of Great Britain, had laid the foundation for the complete enjoyment of uninterrupted happiness, and put an end to the evils attendant on foreign connections. Subsequent to that great and glorious struggle for those rights which God had given to us, as a portion of the human race, we found ourselves in the possession of natural and political advantages, which promised to raise the American character to the summit of national grandeur. A peculiar influence in the disposition of our citizens, added to the increasing state of knowledge and improvements, cultivated our country to enjoy the liberty which it had acquired, and to afford us the pleasing hope, that past experience would teach us to unite a becoming jealousy of our rights, with that moderation and wisdom, which might prevent the dangers of internal faction, and foreign encroachment. But, alas! these delightful prospects have been shut out from our view, and instead of enjoying the purification of happiness, which we were led to calculate as the reward of our successes, and the result of our sacrifices, we behold our political hemisphere, surrounded with clouds, and live to anticipate the disasters of an approaching storm. Indeed, it has not only begun to rage at a distance, attended with the most serious afflictions to our citizens on the ocean, but its violence has pervaded the American continent, and given birth to a diffusion of ferment on the subject of our political operations, which threatens our existence as an independent and powerful nation.

An enquiry into the causes of these effects, which make the most alarming crisis in our affairs, becomes the dignity and duty of a free man; who ought not only to feel himself highly interested in recalling his degrading slavery, but clothed with legislative powers, forming plans for the protection of the rights of his fellow citizens and of the generations which are to come. It is to this impartiality, and expanded philanthropy, that we are now to appeal, for a redress of our former happiness, and at the period when our union is threatened with dissolution, our government with subversion and our continent, perhaps, with the fire-brands of foreign hostility. In the days of our greater security, the spirit of party, might perhaps have been less criminal; but now that our political salvation depends upon a candid consideration of what our real duty & interest should lead us to, it would be unpardonable to be governed by sinister motives upon so important a question, or by any other principles than what are suggested by conscience.

The remarks which will be exhibited in the course of this enquiry, are addressed more particularly to the citizens of Kentucky, than to the inhabitants of any other state; first, because I conceive that the present democratical spirit which almost generally pervades the commonwealth, in opposition to government, to be replete with the most dangerous consequences to its future happiness; and, secondly, because I conceive that at this particular crisis, such opposition, is not only dangerous to the union, but can be no less than a beneficial or favorable end, whatever.

A just estimate of our rights as a nation, the blessings of internal peace, and the advantages of national dignity and independence, must be shown to the State, against an invasion of those rights, the horrors of a continental war, and a shameful subservience to the will and influence of foreign nations. In this calculation, we are to look behind us and take a retrospective view of the blessings from which we are rapidly receding, occasioned by our own conduct, and to look before us towards the future prospects of our country, in order to form a determination, whether we are to permit them to lower with the fate of Venice and Switzerland, or to regain the former splendor which attracted our eyes, and the admiration of the world. In forming this determination, it requires no arguments to show which situation the mind will choose to adopt. The first exhibits a melancholy influence of national debasement, the loss of independence, and the loss of happiness; and the other of every thing that is decribable and truly great and exalted. But in choosing to regain our former enviable station as a free and happy people, infinite wisdom, and much deliberation becomes absolutely necessary. Upon the adoption of measures, our fate will intrinsically depend; nor will it be hazardous an improper opinion, when I say that the United States of America, precariously situated as they are at present, have no advantages to expect, in her progress to happiness, in opposing measures of government, at this time, for what has been done, or from rejecting those proceedings with an inflammatory violence, neither recommended by the constitution, by natural law, or justifiable on the score of policy. Particular circumstances, give origin to particular measures in the course of individual life, as well as in the affairs of a nation.—If errors inaduously creep into the administration of a government, a wise people will calculate the time and the existing situation of their affairs, before they attempt to abrogate principles which might subvert beneficial purposes at one period, and be felt as real evils at another. The period has not yet arrived, when the doctrine of resistance becomes necessary in its application, to prevent the loss of our liberties, and to repel the encroachments of internal tyranny. A government should have made considerable advances towards despotic power, before a people can, justly, consistent with their duty, lay aside the milder modes of seeking redress, for the assumption of those more violent and immediately effective. When this period arrives, it is then a duty to resist; but until our affairs become ripe, for so lamentable an alternative, it is consistent with sound policy to complain with caution, and to remonstrate with moderation.

PHOCION.

Laws of the United States.

An Act, to declare the treaties heretofore concluded with France, no longer obligatory on the United States.

WHEREAS the treaties concluded between the United States and France, have been repeatedly violated on the part of the French government; and the just claims of the United States for reparation of the injuries to committed have been refused, and their attempts to negotiate an amicable adjustment of all complaints between the two nations, have been repelled with indignity; and whereas, under authority of the French government, there is yet pursued against the United States, a system of predatory violence, infracting the said treaties, and hostile to the rights of a free and independent nation.

Be it enacted by the senate and house of representatives of the United States, of America, in congress assembled, That the United States are of right freed and exonerated from the stipulations of the treaties, and of the Consular convention, heretofore concluded between the United States and France; and the same shall not henceforth be regarded as legally obligatory on the government or citizens of the United States.

Approved July 7, 1798.

JOHN ADAMS,
President of the United States.

An Act in addition to the act entitled "An act for the punishment of certain crimes against the United States."

BE it enacted by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America, in congress assembled, That if any person shall unlawfully combine or conspire together with intent to oppose any measure or measures, of the government of the United States, which are or shall be directed by proper authority, or to impede the operation of any law of the United States, or to intimidate or prevent any person holding a place of office in or under the government of the United States, from undertaking, performing or executing his trust or duty; and if any person or persons, as aforesaid, shall counsel, advise or attempt to procure any insurrection, riot, unlawful assembly or combination, whether such conspiracy, threatening, counsel, advice, or attempt shall have the proposed effect or not, he or they shall be deemed guilty of a high misdemeanor, and on conviction, before any court of the United States having jurisdiction thereof, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, and by imprisonment during a term not less than six months nor exceeding five years, and further, at the discretion of the court, may be held to find sureties for his good behaviour, in such sum & for such time, as the said court may direct.

And be it further enacted, That if any person shall write, print, utter or publish, or shall cause or procure to be written, printed, uttered or published, or shall knowingly or wittingly assist, or aid in writing, printing, uttering or publishing any false, scandalous and malicious writing or writings against the government of the United States, or either house of the congress of the United States, or the president of the United States with intent to defame the said government, or either house of the said congress, or the said president, or to bring them or either of them into contempt or disrepute, or to excite against them, or any of them the hatred of the good people of the United States, or to stir up sedition within the United States, or to excite any unlawful combinations therein for opposing or resisting any law of the United States, or any act of the president of the United States, done in pursuance of any such law, or of the powers in him vested by the constitution of the United States, or to resist, oppose, or defeat any such law or act, or to aid, encourage or abet any hostile designs of any foreign nation against the United States, their people or government, then such person, being thereof convicted before any court of the United States having jurisdiction thereof, shall be punished by a fine, not exceeding ten thousand dollars, and by imprisonment not exceeding two years.

And be it further enacted, That if any person shall be prosecuted under this act, for the writing or publishing any libel as aforesaid, it shall be lawful for the defendant, upon the trial of the cause, to give in evidence in his defence, the truth of the matter contained in the publication charged as a libel. And the jury who shall try the cause, shall have a right to determine the law and the fact, under the direction of the court, as in other cases.

And be it further enacted, That this act shall continue and be in force until the third day of March one thousand eight hundred and one, and no longer: Provided, that the expiration of the act shall not prevent or defeat the prosecution and punishment of any offence against the law, during the time it shall be in force.

C. FREEMAN,
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON,

Late of the Indian towns, from the North-Western Territory of the United States, now at Lexington in Kentucky.

RESPECTFULLY informs the public, that he has been regularly bred to the art of Physic and Surgery, studied three and a half years with doctor Laurence, V. D. Veer, an eminent practitioner, and late president of the medical society of the state of New-Jersey; attended doctor William Shippen's lectures on anatomy, surgery and midwifery, in the city of Philadelphia—received a license to practice as a physician and surgeon throughout the state of New-Jersey, 12th of August, 1785, from the honorable David Brearly and Isaac Smith, two of the justices of the supreme court of the state of New-Jersey, agreeable to an act passed 25th November, 1783, by the council and general assembly of that state, for regulating the practice of physic and surgery.

Since which time, he has travelled through twenty-two different tribes of Indians, among whom he has resided nearly four years, and made in his constant study to investigate and find out the virtues of all kinds of herbs, roots, plants and simples, used by them in the curing of diseases; by which means he has made a number of valuable discoveries in the healing art, and now (with the blessing of God) cures and gives relief in most diseases incident to the human body—viz. Fevers, inflammations, eruptions, hemorrhages, fluxes, fits, cramps, convulsions, head-aches, sore-eyes, bleeding at the nose, colds, coughs, pain in the breast, spitting of blood, pains in the stomach, indigestion, night sweats, inward difficulties, low spirits, vapours in men, hysterics in women, difficulty of making water, bloody urine, costiveness and rheumatism, effectually cures worms, cures six and wandering pains arising in different parts of the body, the effects of the improper use of mercury, green wounds, old sores, ulcers, burns, scalds, cankers, scald-head in children, piles and fistulas, the whites in women, and all venereal weaknesses in both sexes; the bite of the viper, rattlesnake, and all venomous bites effectually cured.

The many cures performed within four years past, which will fully appear (to any gentleman who will please to call upon him, being too lengthy for this paper) by papers and vouchers of cures performed, now in his hands, properly attested, and whose authenticity cannot be denied, attests himself is sufficient to convince the public that he has been successful in curing diseases, and that this is not intended as an imposition upon mankind.

LETTER
From JOHN FOWLER, Esq. Member of Congress, to his Constituents.

PHILADELPHIA, July 20, 1798.
Fellow Citizens:

AT a period when America appears to be pregnant with an eventful change; and the public mind is undergoing a mighty revolution; it will not be deemed improper in me, as your representative, to attempt to give you a sketch of the measures which have been taken in congress during its late long and interesting session. It has ever been the characteristic of freemen to bear oppression, from their agents, when heaped by a delicate hand, and in gradual progression; they always have suffered their liberties to be frittered away, one by one, with a countenance of calmness and tranquillity; whilst the usurping power condescends to cajole them with specious promises. America can never lose her liberty from the broad and open assaults of tyranny; to these she has always manifested an intrepid superiority; but her danger is to be apprehended from insidious, designing and artful men, who feebly endeavor to undermine the sacred foundation of our constitution. The extraordinary measures proposed from time to time, to congress, since the call of the extraordinary session, could not have been consummated in one day; if every thing dear and sacred to America had been wrested from her by one fell swoop, she would have arisen, and with an imposing attitude have resumed her rights and avenged the injury; but the changes which have been made have been gradually effected; changes not only in respect to our foreign political relations but in the fundamental principles of our constitution.

To you, fellow citizens, who or dained and established the constitution of the United States as well as the constitution of Kentucky, it may be unnecessary to dwell on a minute description of those instruments; but it may not be deemed intrusive to repeat the general principle upon which all the constitutions in the United States are founded: In the declaration of independence it is assumed as a maxim "that government is instituted among men deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; and whenever any form of government becomes destructive of those ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it." The same idea is emphatically expressed in the present constitution: "We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, &c. do ordain and establish this constitution;" from hence it is demonstrated that the supreme power in America resides in the people as the fountain of government, and the people do not part with it to any government whatsoever. But they delegate it in such proportions to such bodies on such terms and under such limitations as they think proper. From a little attention to the constitution of the United States, it is discovered that a specified proportion of power is vested in congress on certain terms and under certain limitations; and the sweeping clause, as it has been usually denominated, gives no more, nor no other powers beyond the particular enumeration; for when it is said that congress "shall have power to make all laws which shall be necessary and proper," those words are limited and defined by the following, "for carrying into execution the foregoing powers"; this is saying no more than the powers we have already particularly given, shall be effectually carried into execution; but when the powers of a constitution are exercised by the public agents in detailing the minutia or framing the laws, necessarily happens, that a number of incidental powers come into view, and the legislature presumes upon its discretion to make the proper apportionment by constitution. This has happened in several instances whilst I have had the honor of representing you on the floor of the house of representatives, and occasioned a considerable diversity of opinion. Some members in congress seem to disregard the great and fundamental principle laid down in the constitution, namely, the division of the legislative, executive and judicial departments; on all occasions where a constructive power is to be vested, they invariably vote in favour of adding such power to the executive branch; lessening thereby the check which the people intended to reserve as near to themselves as they conveniently could, that is, the check of their immediate representatives. This departure from the most important principle in the constitution has excited in my mind considerable apprehension; and I have thought it my duty to call your attention to the subject, in hopes you will co-operate in preventing the effect of such a fatal change in system.

The inconsistent distribution of constructive powers has been contended for, and effected under a variety of pretexts: the foreign intercourse bill at this session, drew on a lengthy discussion; and in contradiction to former decisions, it was maintained by the advocates of executive power, that wherever the president authorized a negotiation, or made a treaty, your immediate representatives were not to consider, whether an appropriation for carrying on the first, or executing the last, was politic or not; but that the house were bound in conscience to vote the money, be the amount what it might; it was said to be a moral duty incumbent upon every member, notwithstanding the constitution expressly guards the treasury from executive drafts, in declaring that no money shall be drawn from it, but in consequence of appropriations to be made by law; and no appropriation to be made by law, but what the house of representatives shall judge and decide to be useful and proper: this is one among a number of instances which have occurred during the late session. Another contradiction was given, to the authority declared in the constitution, that congress shall have the power of raising armies; it had always been the practice of congress to order a specific army to be raised at a fixed period, it is now left to the president to raise such army or not, as his discretion dictates. The law concerning aliens attempts to give the president a power which it never was supposed was vested in the general government by the constitution; but on the contrary it is specially excepted against and referred to the states, by the 6th section of the first article. The bill directing the prosecution and punishment of those who shall attempt to bring your executive functionary, or your legislative agents, into contempt or detestation, either by writing, uttering or publishing, is a weapon of tremendous force in the hands of an executive administration! It must inspire terror in the breasts of some, and give birth to that system of espionage, which loosens all the moral ties of society; its dreadful effects can only be averted by the firmness and patriotism of the citizens throughout the Union.

Our numerous schemes of revenue, the extension of our political intercourse with foreign nations, the increase of our standing army, the appointments to be made among the volunteers, and the establishment of a navy, has given to the executive administration a patronage that may ultimately disturb the harmony of the Union. But when you add to this the vast sums of money vested in the disposal of the president; and consider the great loans he is authorized to make; the numerous contracts for supplies for an army of 23,000 men, with 100,000 volunteers, 80,000 militia, and 30 or 40 armed ships, which will necessarily offer to many persons the means of advantageous speculation: I think I am warranted in believing that the most suspicious will be caused to exert all their watchfulness over the executive administration with a high degree of jealousy. Let's power than the president is now possessed of, has given to ambitious commanders, the power of tyrannizing over their fellow citizens, and establishing in their families an hereditary supremacy. Power without control is not to be trusted: virtue when suffered to act at pleasure becomes vice—well to do the wisest, the justest man with unlimited authority, and to-morrow he becomes the cruel, arbitrary oppressor. If the palladium of our constitution has been openly and daringly violated by one branch of your government, what security can you have that other branches will be more restrained.

You are asked to have confidence in the executive administration. In other countries, confidence has proved the source of injury and the incentive to guilt. Behind this barrier the traitor finds security against the attacks of the betrayed; therefore prudence would direct that you give your confidence with caution.

With respect to our controversy with France I shall briefly remark, that, till the arrival of the dispatches from our envoys at Paris, giving an account of a conversation of unauthorized agents, the president had uniformly declared an ardent desire to restore the two republics to the state of amity which existed previous to the British treaty; but we find he has been so unfortunate in his manner of expressing this idea, that he has not been believed by the executive directory; they appear to have had a continual jealousy of our executive administration ever since they found that Mr. Jay was sent to London to negotiate a commercial treaty while they were officially informed by the proper authority that it was merely for the purpose of "obtaining immediate" compensation for our plundered property and restitution of the ports," what their intentions are now, may I apprehend, be in some degree discovered by the invitation of Mr. Talleyrand to Mr. Gerry, our remaining envoy, to reform the business of negotiation and adjust the differences of the two nations. If Mr. Gerry does not find himself precluded by his own reply, or some other contingency, I should be inclined to suspect that a treaty may be formed on the honorable basis of his instructions, a copy of which was laid before congress last April.

I shall conclude this letter with intruding you to pay a serious regard to the emergencies of the times, and not to be wanting to yourselves in an hour of extreme danger: if there is danger to your constitution or your government it may be corrected by yourselves; there is, therefore, a remedy for every dilemma, but, for a people wanting to themselves there is no remedy, and from their power there is no appeal. And to you fellow citizens, I, as your agent appointed to express your will in the national council, address myself, an ask, if not from the propriety of my decisions: on the several questions which have been before congress, yet from the purity of my motives, whether I have executed my trust to your satisfaction. If I meet with your approbation, as I have the approbation of my own conscience, I shall conceive this tour of duty to have been the happiest circumstance of my life.

With respect, I am your most obedient,
JOHN FOWLER.

* Instead of immediate restitution the American merchants have not received as much as the interest, on the value of the spoils, committed previous to the treaty to say nothing of their daily depredations.

SENATE of the UNITED STATES.
July 18, 1798.

Gentlemen of the Senate,
Believing that the letter received this morning from general Washington will give high satisfaction to the senate, I transmit them a copy of it, and congratulate them and the public on this great event, the general's acceptance of his appointment as lieutenant-general and commander in chief of the army.

JOHN ADAMS.
UNITED STATES, July 17, 1798.

Mount Vernon, 13th July, 1798.
DEAR SIR,

I had the honor on the evening of the 11th inst, to receive from the hand of the secretary of war, your favor of the 7th, announcing that you had, with the advice and consent of the senate, appointed me "Lieutenant-general and commander in chief of all the armies raised or to be raised for the service of the United States." I cannot express how greatly affected I am at this new proof of public confidence, and the highly flattering manner in which you have been pleased to make the communication; at the same time I must not conceal from you my earnest wish, that the choice had fallen upon a man less declined in years, and better qualified to encounter the usual vicissitudes of war.

You know, Sir, what calculation I had made relative to the probable course of events, on my retiring from office and the determination I had conceived myself with, of closing the remnant of my days in my present peaceful abode; you will therefore be as loth to conceive and appreciate the sensations I must have experienced, to bring my mind to any consideration that should pledge me, at a late period of life, to leave scenes I sincerely love, to enter upon the boundless field of public action, incessant trouble, and high responsibility.

It was not possible for me to remain ignorant of, or indifferent to, recent transactions. The conduct of the directory of France, towards our country; their insidious hostility to its government; their various practices to withdraw the affections of the people from it; the evident tendency of their acts and those of their agents to countenance and invigorate opposition; their disregard of solemn treaties and the laws of nations; their war upon our defenceless commerce; their treatment of our ministers of peace; and their demands amounting to tribute; could not fail to excite in me corresponding sentiments with those my countrymen have so generally expressed in their affectionate addresses to you. Believe me, Sir, no one can more cordially approve of the wise and prudent measures of your administration. They ought to inspire universal confidence, and will, no doubt, combined with the state of things, call from congress such laws and means as will enable you to meet the force and extent of the crisis.

Satisfied, therefore, that you have sincerely wished and endeavored to avert war, and exhausted, to the last drop, the cup of reconciliation, we can with pure hearts appeal to Heaven for the justice of our cause; and may confidently trust the final result to that kind providence who has heretofore, and to often, signally favored the people of these United States.

Thinking in this manner, and feeling how incumbent it is upon every person, of every description, to contribute at all times to his country's welfare, and especially in a moment like the present, when every thing we hold dear and sacred is so seriously threatened, I have finally determined to accept the commission of Commander in Chief of the Armies of the United States; with the reserve only, that I shall not be called into the field until the army is in a situation to require my presence, or it becomes indispensable by the urgency of circumstances.

In making this reservation, I beg it to be understood, that I do not mean to withhold any assistance to arrange and organize the army, which you may think I can afford. I take the liberty also to mention, that I must decline having my acceptance considered as drawing after it any immediate charge upon the public; or that I can receive any emoluments annexed to the appointment before entering into a situation to incur expense.

The secretary of war being anxious to return to the seat of government, I have detained him no longer than was necessary to a full communication upon the several points he had in charge.

With very great respect and consideration, I have the honor to be,
Dear Sir,

Your most obedient humble servant,
Go. WASHINGTON.

JOHN ADAMS,
President of the United States.

TRENTON, July 17.
The president, by a proclamation, dated the 13th instant has revoked the exequators of the Consuls of the French republic here, viz of citizens Letombe, Rozier, Arcambal and Mozard.

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.
APPOINTMENTS—BY AUTHORITY.
Alexander Hamilton, of New-York, to be inspector general of the army, with the rank of major general.
Charles Coste-worth Pinckney, of S. Carolina, to be a major general.

Henry Knox, of Massachusetts, to be a major general.
Henry Lee, of Virginia, to be a major general of the provisional army.

Edward Hand, of Pennsylvania, to be a major general of the provisional army.
John Brooks, of Massachusetts, to be a brigadier general.

William Washington, of South Carolina, to be a brigadier general.

Jonathan Dayton, of New Jersey, to be a brigadier general.

Ebenezer Huntington, of Connecticut, to be a brigadier general of the provisional army.

Anthony Walton White, of New-Jersey, to be a brigadier general of the provisional army.

William Richardson Davie, of North-Carolina, to be a brigadier general of the provisional army.

John Sevier, of Tennessee, to be a brigadier general of the provisional army.

James Craik, of Virginia, to be physician general of the army.

Daniel McNeil, of Massachusetts, and Thomas Williams of Virginia, to be captains in the navy.

Henry Grant, of South Carolina, consular for the port of Leith, in Scotland.
John Seneca West, marshal for the North Carolina district.

KNOXVILLE, July 17.

We learn by cap. Colby who lately descended the river Tennessee to the Ohio, and returned to this place a few days past, by way of Smithland and the Cumberland settlements, that a detachment of the troops of the United States commanded by cap. Pike, have taken possession of a bluff upon the fourth bank of the first mentioned river about six miles from its junction with the latter, and is there, about to erect fortifications apparently for a permanent post.

This bluff is from eight to ten miles within the Indian boundary; that is, that distance upon the lands claimed by the Indians. Cap. Colby adds, that while he was at Smithland, 150 Indians appeared there blacked, and expressed their extreme disapprobation of cap. Pike's intrusion upon their lands. Thus it appears that the Indians can no more comprehend than the citizens, by what authority the troops of the United States take possession of their lands, and establish military posts at will, without their consent first obtained.

The treaty which had commenced at Tellico, between the commissioners on the part of the United States and the Cherokee Indians, is broke up for the present. The both parties have agreed to meet again at the same place on the third day of September next, for further negotiations.

Lexington, August 8.

On the sixteenth of July, at four o'clock, Congress brought the long and most important session to a close, which has been held under the present government, during which they passed eighty-four acts.

Extract of a Letter from a gentleman at Fort Mifflin, dated July 11, 1798.

"A gentleman has just arrived from Natchez, who informs that there is a strong party there in favor of the French and Spanish governments—that all the talks held with the Indians are in the name of the French—that the presents in the last few months to the Indians have been immense, and that a large part of the Chactaw nation is decidedly in their favor, and are ready to take up arms against us; in consequence of which the commandant of Natchez has requested a reinforcement. The Indian nations to the south are full of Spanish and French emissaries. Zachariah Cox is eighteen miles above us, with three or four hundred rifle-men, and is preparing to defend the river. The conjectures with respect to his object are various, but all seem to agree that his intentions are inimical to our government. Perhaps I shall give you news that will surprize you upon that head, by the next opportunity."

At a numerous and respectable meeting of the inhabitants of Washington county, on Monday the 6th inst. the following resolutions were entered into:

1. Resolved, that we will, at the hazard of our lives and fortunes, support the constitution and independence of the United States; that being deeply impressed with the apprehension, that our liberties are in danger, it becomes the primary duty of every good citizen, to guard, as faithfully as possible, his constitutional rights, and to repel all violations of them, from what quarter soever offered.

2. Resolved, That the acts passed during the present session of congress, respecting aliens, and for the punishment of sedition, are direct violations of the constitution, and entitle a citizen to his most valuable rights; that to speak, write and publish, are privileges of which a freeman cannot divest himself, much less be abridged in them by others; that for the service of the people, to tell the truth, is a sacred duty, that they shall not, at their peril, assent to the conduct of, nor continue their servants, for the abuse of power committed to them, is tyranny more infernal than African; that the freedom of speech, the liberty of the press, by law, and self defence, are among the inalienable rights of freemen; no one of which can be abridged or taken away, without sinking and debasing him into the condition of a slave.

3. Resolved, That we deplore as one of the most unfortunate events which could befall us, the war with the French Republic. We deplore it, because, next to slavery, and our own exertions, we are indebted to that action for the liberty we now enjoy; because by such a war, we have every thing to lose and nothing to gain; because the enormous debt which will be produced by that war, must either bankrupt the United States, or entail on us and our posterity, a debt which may take centuries to discharge; and because such a war, we have every reason to fear, will infinitely crush this little commonwealth, it being not directly able to discharge the present congressional demands, much less its proportion of two millions which have been voted by the present congress.

4. Resolved, That we deprecate as an event of the most imminent and dangerous nature, an alliance offensive and defensive with Great Britain; impolitic, because she is already near by bankrupt in her government and fortune, and has been for a century past, in her principles; and if she has not already sunk, will, ere long, sink under the regenerating arm of the French Republic; humiliating, because she holds in contempt the American name and character; the founts of rebel and traitor have scarcely left our ears, and still the atrociously and vainly looks forward to the time, when the American people, will return to their former colonial submission and dependence.

5. Resolved, That we will, to the utmost of our ability, comply with any congressional demand for the purpose of repelling, invading, and resisting attempts against our liberty and independence, from what quarter soever offered; but that we consider all maritime offensive operations as destructive and impolitic, tending only to accumulate the public debt, and give additional strength and influence to the dangerous and exorbitant powers lately committed to the executive department.

6. Resolved, That fullness and adulatory address to agents and servants of our own creation, are equally absurd and impolitic. That it is prostituting the majesty and dignity of the people, puffing up those servants with false pride and vanity; filling them with ambition; and fixing their minds with stronger desires for increase of power and influence, to which means of office are always too ready, without any encouragement, to grasp at. That although flattery and adulation may be fit offerings for prostrate slaves to render at the altar of their tyrant masters, yet, to true republican patriots the honor of serving their country, and the honest and faithful discharge of their duties, is the only genuine and lasting honor they ought to expect, or can receive.

7. Resolved, That the foregoing resolutions be published in the Kentucky Gazette and Herald, and such other newspapers as will please to give them a place; and that copies hereof be transmitted to our representatives to be laid before the legislature and president of the United States.

LANDS.

By virtue of a decree of the district court, held in Lexington, will be sold to the highest bidder, at the court-house door, in Mount Sterling, Montgomery county, on the 9th day of October next, (which is the court day for the said county) and the three following days, the sale to commence at 12 o'clock each day; the following tracts of land, lying in the said county, on Slate creek and lickings, to wit:

An undivided moiety of the following entries, made January the 21st, 1784, to wit:

Teremiah Foster, alias, &c. enters 6-03 3-4 acres on a treasury warrant No. 18,957, beginning at the uppermost corner of an entry of 15,625 acres made in the name of Alex. O. Orr, on Licking, and running with his upper line 1984 poles, thence up Lickings, and binding on the same, for quantity—when entry is surveyed and patented to be laid further; the one half being the locator, Simon Krentz's part, and sold by him to general Wilkinson.

Also two tracts of 10,625 acres, and 5000 acres, surveyed, and granted by patent, to James Wilkinson, February the 21st, 1793; which surveys were made, by virtue of the following entry, made January the 21st, 1784, to wit: Alex. Orr enters 15,625 acres on a treasury warrant No. 19,315, beginning at the upper corner of an entry made in the name of Edmund Trevelick, of 1320 acres, on Licking creek, and running with his upper line the whole length thereof, thence the course continued 2000 poles, thence up the creek, and binding thereon, for quantity—so much thereof as will be sufficient to lay and may Peyton Short the first of eleven hundred and seventy-four pounds, eight shillings and eleven pence three farthings, with interest thereon, from the first day of February, in the year 1793, until paid—together with the expenses of sale, and the costs of suit, pursuant to the said decree, entered up in a suit in chancery, brought by the said Peyton Short, against the said James Wilkinson; to foreclose a mortgage on the said lands. The tracts of 10,625 acres, and of 5000 acres, will be sold to accommodate purchasers, in small tracts, and on twelve months credit, the purchasers giving bond and good security for the purchase money. As it is a condition of the mortgage and decree, that 1500 acres shall be reserved out of the 5000 acres tract, for Christopher Bryan, and as much as will redeem a bond, to William Murray esq. the commissioners will attend at Mount Sterling, on the 8th day of October, at nine o'clock in the morning, to proceed to the land, to be sold for Christopher Bryan, and as much as will redeem the bond, to William Murray esq.

SACRED TO THE MUSES.

AN INVITATION INTO THE COUNTRY.

THE swallows, in their torpid state,
Compais their useful wings,
And bees in hives as idly wait
The call of early spring.

The keener frost that binds the stream,
The wildest wind that blows,
Are neither felt nor fear'd by them,
Secure in their repose.

But, man all feeling, and awake,
The gloom of these surveys;
With present life his heart must ache,
And pant for brighter days.

Old Winter, halting o'er the mead,
Bids me and Myra mourn;
But, lo! Spring peeps o'er his head,
And whispers your return.

Then, April, with her filer, May,
Shall chase him from the bow'rs;
And wren fresh garlands ev'ry day,
To crown the smiling hours.

And if a tear that speaks regret
Of happier times appear,
A glimpse of joy that we have met
Shall thine, and dry the tear.

ANECDOTE.

A Chinese silver-smith, to whom the English have given the name of Tsin Wo-kow, brought home some silver spoons, as he called them, to a sea-captain, who had ordered them. The captain suspecting that his friend Tom had played him a trick, (common in China) of adding no small quantity of tutenague to the usual proportion of alloy, taxed him with the cheat, which he denied, with the strongest affirmations of his innocence. The captain then told him, that he had brought with him a famous water, called ye ewter, which being placed on the tongue of a person suspected of telling an untruth, if the case were so, burned a hole in it; if otherwise, the party escaped with honor, and unhurt. Tom thinking it a trick, readily consented; upon which, a single drop of aqua fortis, was put upon his tongue; he instantly jumped about the room, crying out, "Very true, half tutenague, half tutenague," in hopes that confessing the fact might put a stop to the ye water, which, from the pain he had some reason to think, possessed the quality ascribed to it.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the commissioners will meet on Friday the 17th of August next, at a sugar tree, standing on the bank of Hinton, in Bourbon county, where the road leading from Paris to the Upper Blue Licks crosses, in order to take the depositions of sundry persons, for the purpose of establishing a beginning, made for Francis Epps Harris, of one thousand acres of land, covered by a treasury warrant.

Samuel Earm.

July 16th, 1798.

HEREBY forewarn all persons from taking assignments on three bonds, given by me to Mr. Peter G. Voorhies, of the town of Frankfort, dated some time in March last, for forty pounds each; the first payable some time in November next; the second sometime in May, 1799; the third in May, 1800 as near as I recollect; as I am determined not to pay them until compelled by law; the said Voorhies not having complied with his bond to me for a tract of first rate land in Mason county, the said land proving not to be of the quality specified in the said bond.

MOSES ROBINS.

July 30th, 1798.

TAKE NOTICE,

THAT commissioners appointed by the court of Mason county, will meet on Monday the 20th of August ensuing at Hugh Shannons settlement and pre-emption on the waters of Shannan, in order to take depositions of witnesses and perpetuate their testimony respecting the said settlement and pre-emption, and do such other acts as may be agreeable to law.

NOTICE.

THERE will be application made to the county court of Warren county, for a town to be established on the lands of Samuel Doughty against the October court, 1798.

A few copies of Rushon's Letter to Washington,
May be had at this office.

TAKE NOTICE.

THAT on the 22d day of August 1797, I shall attend with the commissioners appointed by the county court of Shelby, to take the deposition or depositions, as the case may be, to establish the calls in an entry made in the name of John Withers and James Duncan, for one thousand acres of land lying on the waters of Brashear's creek, near the head of Clear creek; the said entry calls for the head of a branch which runs into the said creek, opposite to John Bailey's cabin, and to include a cabin built by Evan Hinton. I shall meet at Mr. Abraham Reece's tavern near the head of Clear creek, and from thence proceed to Hinton's cabin, then and there to take the depositions agreeable to an act of the legislature for that purpose.

George Marshall,
attorney for Withers.

Twenty-six Dollars Reward.

DESERVED, from this garrison, on the night of the 12th inst. James McGonagle and Eliza Cachill, soldiers of the 4th United States regiment.

McGonagle is an Irishman by birth, about twenty-one years of age, five feet eight inches high; dark complexion, long black hair, black eyes, by trade a cooper—he formerly lived in Maryland and Delaware; and probably may steer that way or to Kentucky.

Cachill is country born, about twenty-one years of age, five feet five inches high, fair complexion, brown hair, black eyes, by trade a blacksmith, has a cast in his left eye, which is very observable. They went off in company, and took their regimental clothing with them. It is presumed that McGonagle will forge balls and discharges for themselves. The above reward will be paid for apprehending and securing them, or on delivering them to any officer in the United States, or thirteen dollars for either, and reasonable expenses if brought to this place.

NOTICE,
To the inhabitants of Fayette, and the adjacent Counties.

A T crisis more important to the Liberty, Independence and Happiness of America, than any which hath taken place since the declaration of Independence;—at a period, when the interests of the Western country must be deeply affected by the measures which may be pursued by the Federal government;—and at a time, when the citizens of America are generally expressing their sentiments as to the steps that ought to be taken by that government;—your silence will be construed into an unapproachable indifference to the welfare of your country; and an abandonment of your right, according to your number, of directing the councils of your representatives. It is therefore proposed, that there shall be a general meeting of the inhabitants of Fayette and the adjacent counties, on the next August Fayette court day, at 12 o'clock, at the Presbyterian meeting-house, in the town of Lexington, for the purpose of taking into consideration, the present critical situation of public affairs, & to express to their representatives, their opinions of the measures which have been already adopted, and those which ought now to be pursued, at this eventful moment; and it is hoped, that the friends of peace, and those who are really attached to Republican principles, will be pointed in their attendance on this occasion.

NOTICE
I S hereby given, that I shall apply to the county court of Warren in August next, for an order to establish a town agreeable to law, on my land lying on Big Barren river, on the con-fluence of said river and Drakes creek.
ANDREW M'FADDIN.
June 6th, 1798.

NOTICE
THAT application will be made to the county court of Bourbon county at their next September court for leave to establish a town on my lands on Hineslons fork of Licking creek, at the place known by the name of Millerburgh.
JOHN MILLER.
July 2d, 1798. 2am 3m

NOTICE
THERE will be application made to the county court of Warren county, for a town to be established on the lands of Samuel Doughy a-against the October court, 1798. *68

Twenty-six Dollars Reward.

DEPRTED, from this parish, on the night of the 12th inst. James McGonagle and Eliza Cahill, fol-diers of the 4th United States regim-ent.

McGonagle is an Irishman by birth, about twenty-one years of age, five feet eight inches high, dark complexion, long black hair, black eyes, by trade a cooper—he formerly lived in Maryland and Delaware; and proba-bly may steer that way or to Kentu-ky.

Cahill is country born, about twenty-one years of age, five feet five inches high, fair complexion, brown hair, black eyes, by trade a blacksmith, has a cast in his left eye, which is very observable. They went off in company, and took their regimental clothing with them. It is presumed that McGonagle will forge passes and discharges for themselves. The above reward will be paid for apprehending and securing them, or on delivering them to any officer in the United States, or thirteen dollars for either, and reasonable expences if brought to this place.

B. Lockwood,
Capt. 4th U. S. regt.
Fort Butler, 13th July, 1798.

TAKE NOTICE
THAT on the 22d day of August 1797, I shall attend with the com-missioners appointed by the county court of Shelby, to take the deposti-on or depositions, as the case may be, to establish the calls in an entry made in the name of John Withers and James Duncan, for one thousand a-cres of land lying on the waters of Brashear's creek, near the head of Clear creek; the said entry calls for the head of a branch which runs into the said creek, opposite to John Bai-ly's cabin, and to include a cabin built by Evan Hinton. I shall meet at Mr. Abraham Reece's tavern near the head of Clear creek, and from thence proceed to Hinton's cabin, then and there to take the depositions agree-able to an act of the legislature for that purpose.
George Marshall,
attorney for claimers.

A Caution to the Public;

Respecting a forgery that has lately tak-en place in Kentucky.

WHEREAS, my business I am com-met, called me from this state, to the state, of Georgia, at which place I exchanged my lands, and o-ther property in Georgia, with a cer-tain Daniel Wagoner, for six thousand nine hundred and seventy-six a-cres of military lands, in Logan coun-ty, Kentucky, in three different tracts—the patents whereof, were filed in the name of Joseph Tible, who was there at that time, and made the deeds of conveyance to me, as Mr. Wagoner only obtained the lands from him a few days before his con-tract with me, which was in the month of August, ninety-seven. To each tract, was a certificate, setting forth the quality of the lands, signed by Rowland Madison, and Robert Ewing, justices of the peace, in, and for Logan county. Below each cer-tificate in this order was another cer-tificate, alerting those men to be jus-tices of the peace in Logan county, signed by Samuel Caldwell, clerk of said county, with the county seal af-fixed thereto; and that the said describ-ed lands were clear of all incumbrance whatever. Therefore, through the faith and credit I put in those papers, I exchanged my lands in Georgia, and having returned this spring to this state, I went to Logan county, to see the lands, but found them not. I then went to the gentlemen that should have recommended the lands, to whom I produced the papers, that they should have signed, but every man denied the hand writing, and protested the whole proceedings to be forgery. On my return I called on Governor Shelby, who should have signed the patents, he also protested the patents to be forged, and never signed by him. I then went to the land office, at Frankfort, and the clerk thereof protested that no such patents were ever issued from that office, nor any entry made of any such lands. James Brown, did also protest his name, on each patent, not to be his hand writing, who was then secretary of the state. Now, though I have recourse to a bond with securi-ty, recorded in Wilkes county office, for the value of my property, in Georgia—yet, in order to do justice to other citizens, both here and else-where, I have thought proper to make this matter known, that there may not be such an imposition used upon other men, as what hath been done on me. But, I am not the only sufferer in this villainy. From what I learn, there has been thirty-two thousand acres of military lands, forged in the same way, and sold last fall, in Red-stone; and nearly forty thousand acres more, in old Virginia. It is genera-ly thought that this forgery hath ta-ken place near the Cumberland river, and not far distant from the settle-ment of Philip Alton in Christiana county. But, I take it for granted, that those gentlemen who hold the reins of government in their hands, will not pass over this with impunity, but endeavor as much as they can, to check the progress of this great evil, lest those villains over the moun-tain, as the caterpillars and locusts, de-vastate the land of Egypt. While they become as pernicious to this common-wealth, as the Hessian fly is to the wheat? Doth not Justice fly, out there down; why incurberth they the ground? But, mercy sayeth, erect your penitentiary house, or military cell, where, they may work out their time with a living sorrow, which will be doing justice to the community at large, and to avenge more than the present sufferer.

P. S. It is evident from the hand writing of Tible, in signing the deeds to me, that he was not capable of completing the forgery, though a vil-lain in the mean, I believe. He is a-bout 6 feet high, 35 or 36 years of age, and weighs nearly about two hundred, and is now said to be in the Creek na-tion, in Robinson county, state of Tennessee, he is known by the name of Joseph Still, or Tible Still, in Hono-ler county Virginia, where he was mostly ruined, he is known by Joseph Welcher Tible, but in all his papers to me, by the name of Joseph Tible, &c.

September 5, 1797.

I HAVE been directed by the managers of the Lexington Lodge lottery, to order suits to be commenced against every person in arrears for the purchase of tickets without discrimination; but think it proper to give this further notice, under the fullest confidence, that many of those indebted will prevent the managers from being forced to a measure so extremely disagreeable; and will relieve them from their present difficulties, by immediately paying to me, their respective balances due to the lottery. Application is frequently made for prizes; but no money to discharge them—suits have been commenced and judgments obtained against the managers. CASH is really wanted, and it is hoped this notice will be attended to.—No further indulgence can be given. All these who have purchased tickets and are entitled to a credit on account of prizes, are requested to forward their fortunate numbers as soon as possible, that the true state of their accounts may be known.
THOS. BODLEY,
